Average percentage of revenue from Marketing Channels

The IMRG Capgemini Quarterly Benchmarking Report 1 covers the split of revenue received during the quarter that has been attributed to a variety of different marketing channels. It is based on a last click basis – i.e. what was the ‘last click’ the customer clicked on before they landed on a retailers website. There are 8 channels that are tracked: paid, affiliate, email, Natural, direct, social, display and other. The below graph shows the share that each channel has generated for the average retailer since 2017

Figure 4: The share of revenue each marketing channel generates for the average retailer. Based on a last click methodology

Each of the channels record a varying share across the quarters, but when viewed from a longer time frame (such as the above graph) its notable that no individual channel is gaining or losing share consistently over time.

Average Device Revenue Generated Split

The IMRG Capgemini Quarterly Benchmarking Report 3 covers revenue and Visits generated by device.

This is an average taken to show how each device is performing in the current market and give you an understanding of where consumers view and buy products from each device.

What are the Benefits?

All retailers taking part in the Quarterly Benchmarking receive first-hand results and charts, providing insight into over 40 KPIs (dependent on the data they are able to provide), including visitor, basket and checkout abandonment rates, percentage of orders cancelled due to fraud, geographical split of sales (UK, EU, and Rest of World), marketing ROI (PPC, affiliate, online) and revenue, visits and orders split by marketing method.

The retailer reports also include whisker charts, detailing the maximum and minimum value of each benchmark in the quarterly period, together with the range of upper and lower quartiles and median values of the participant data. All participant data remains completely confidential and secure at all times.

Participation in the IMRG Capgemini Quarterly Benchmarking is available to reputable online retailers of all sizes. For further details, or to join the Quarterly Benchmarking please contact:
